

Sandy Jewett

"I am honored that others enjoy my creations."

A crafter to the core, Sand Jewett resume is loaded with various art mediums: paper crafter, weaver, painter, and pottery.

Crediting her mother for instilling the love of all forms of art from an early age, Sandy made jewelry in the Seattle area before moving to Vancouver Island for sixteen years. "I was lucky that I met several great potters and started making functional pottery," explained Jewett. "That started my love affair with pottery."

Sandy's love is throwing her creations on the pottery wheel, but often lets her creativity run rampant hand building extraordinary pieces.

After moving to Sun City West in 2004, Sandy has a home studio and is often at the studio where she has been a member for twenty years. Not only is Sandy an extraordinary ceramicist but is a mentor to many new aspiring artists sharing her wisdom about clay.
